NEW ISLANDS IN THE PACIFIC.

Important Discovery—More Verritory for the United States. On the 5th of July, 1859, Captain N. C. Brooks, of the Hawatian barque Gambia, while cruising to the West Northwest of the Sandwich Islands, discovered a group of Islands and shoals in lati-tude 28 deg. 12 mm. North, and longitude 177

deg. 12 min. West from Greenwich, not huberto given on any chart. On making the discovery Captain Brooks landed on one of the islands, dug a well, erected a flagstaff, and took possession of them in the name of the United States, leaving notice to that effect.

On the 13th of May, 1867, Allan McLane, Esq., President of the Pacific Mad Steamship Company, addressed a letter to the Secretary of the Navy, calling the attention of the Navy Department. ment to "the great importance in special connection with the China Ma.I Steamship line, of obtaining, at the earliest practical moment, full and reliable information touching the chain of small islands in the North Pacific Ocean, of small islands in the North Pacitic Ocean, stretching from the Hawaiian group in a general West Northwesterly direction." Mr. McLane particularly mentioned one of these groups, which he designated as Brooks Island, as possibly destined to "prove of early importance as a coaling station" for that comdany's China steamships and for United States vessels cruising in those waters, and requested that a full survey might be made of these Islands by a trustworthy vessel. On the 28th of May, 1867, the Department issued an order, with the requisite instructions to Rear-Admiral H. K. Thatcher, commanding the North Pacific Squadron, to detail the Lackawanna, or some other suitable vessel, to search for the island above referred to, and, having found it, to take possession of it in the name o the United States, and to make as accurate and complete survey of it as practicable. Accord-ingly the Lackawanna, Captain William Rey-nolds was sent on the expedition; and under date of the 30th of September, 1867, Captain Reynolds reported that he took formal possession of Brooks Island and reefs for the United States on the 28th of August previous, The report of the surveys made by Captain Reynolds substantially confirms Captain Brooks' original statement. He describes the two islands designated as Brooks Island, as being long and low, and chiefly formed of coral, shells, and sand.

The vegetation of the island consists entirely of shrubs, herbs, and coarse grasses; none of the shrubs are over three to five feet in height. On both islands several wells were dug, and water found at depths of from four to seven Surgeon Kennedy tested the water taken from these as far as the materials he had at hand permitted. When first collected the speci-mens were so full of sand and organic impuri-ties in a state of suspension that it was necessary to filter them. After nitration, tested by different reagents, they were found to be bard, free from organic impurities in solution. There was every evidence that wells, properly sunk to a good depth, would afford a good supply of potable water. Immense numbers of sea birds are constantly bovering over and alighing upon these islands. The lagoon is full of fish, seal, and turtle. The seal is the common bair seal, and is not of much commercial importance. The fish belong principally to the mullet, perch, and mackerel families.

Captain Reynolds describes the harbor as formed very much like that of Honolulu, as rather more roomy and as safe, but with not quite the same dep'h of water on its bar, which, however, appeared to be available for vessels less than eighteen feet. During the Beventeen days that the Lackawanna remained at the islands, the lowest point which the thermometer reached was 72, while the highest was 89 degrees. The greatest rise and fail of the tide observed during the neap tides was eighteen inches, the lowest fifteen inches. The circumference of the reef enclosing the islands is forty-two miles. Its shape is irregular; its diameter, from north to south, nine and a half miles; from east to west, sixteen miles. The name of "Midway Islands" has been adopted by the Navy Department for this group.

ANOTHER LYNCHING.

A Desperado and Murderer is Waken from a Mississippi Jail and Hung at Midnight.

From the Memphis Avalanche, July 26. The town of Jacinto, the county seat of Tishomingo county, Mississippi, was the scene of a tragic and mysterious afair last Wednesday night which has been the subject of much comment since. Upwards of two weeks ago two white men. known respectively as Williams and Bibb, and noted as outlaws, were arrested by the joint efforts of the military and civil authorities for something, and lodged in the Jacinto jail. Two weeks afterwards both escaped, but on the following day the dead body of Bibb was found in the woods. It had been stripped of clothing, and every circumstance tended to the belief that he had been murdered. About the same time some horses were missed in the neighborhood, and a squad of soldiers and citizens commenced scouring the country for the thieves. Suspicion naturally fell on Williams, who was traced to near Eastport, on the Tennessee river, and captured by some sol-diers. One of the party recognized the clothing worn by him as that belonging to Bibb when in He was at once accused of the murder, and, being closely questioned, contessed by h crimes. Williams was taken to Jacinto and restored to the communion of the kindred spirits he so suddenly deserted.

About 12 o'clock last Wednesday night the quiet streets of Jacinto resounded with the clatter of horsemen, and a few moments afterwards a dozen or fitteen men, finely mounted, and masked, halted in front of the only store in the place. After obtaining a rope from the only store in the place, they left, rode rapidly to the jail, and knocked at the door until the jatior, Mr. Travis, came to the window and demanded the cause of the singular demonstra-tion. "We want to get in," replied one of the veiled horsemen; and upon the jailor's refusal to grant permission, the door was pried open. He came down stairs and entreated them to leave; but the leader terminated the parley by calling out, 'Nos. 1, 7, and 9 will take charge of the jailor;" and Mr. Travis was suddenly scized and prevented from any further demon-

The only other utterance of the leader was: "You've got a,man we want" as he led the way to the interior of the building. In the centre is a large iron cage, used to confine dangerous prisoners. The door was pried open, and several of the velled regulators entered. It contained three negroes and two white men Tae leader pointed to one of them—the murderer Williams—who was seized and borne outside. The three men detailed to goard the jailor remained with him a few moments, but the others disappeared as suddenly as they came. Foon the failor was left alone. At daylight in the morning the news of the visit of a masked mob to the jail became known, and the sheriff, Captain Boalt, started to ascerand the shells, taptain bean, started to ascertain the whereabouts of the prisoner. Commencing at the jail he traced the party by the marks of the horses' hoos on the ground. One hundred and fifty yards from the building the road makes an abrapt turn at a loadly wooded place. Looking up from the ground a moment when reaching the grout he was startled at sec. place. Looking up from the ground a moment when reaching the spot, he was startled at seeing the body of the object of his search dangling liteless from the himb of a tree. He had evidently been dead several hours, for the form was cold and rigid. No one was present to tell the story. The work of the executioners had been short and decisive, and the world contained one less criminal.

Williams was once a Federal soldier, and came to Corinth last year with a body of troops.

He was regarded as a bad man, and soon afterwards deserted. From that time until his death he was known as a thief and desperado, and on he was known as a thiel and desperado, and on several occasions the military had hunted him through the swamps. He and bibb were part-ners for a long time. The latter could not have had any money when murdered, and Williams would hardly have committed the crime for the few pieces of clothing worn by his victim. It is more probable that Bibb possessed information of some dark transaction which Williams was particularly desirous of keeping from the light, well knowing that "dead men tell no tales," The names of the men who executed Williams are unknown. There are no Ku-Kiux in the consty, and many believe the "regulators" to have been soldiers, BUSINESS NOTICES.

FWINGING ROUND THE CINCLE-There are fifty ways of alleviating the agonies of dyspepsia for the moment; but there is only one way to CURE it, After 'swinging round the circle" of temporary palliatives the patient finds that the disease, so far from being subdued, has actually gathered strength, while he has been parleying with its symptoms. The only way to get rid of the demon is to endow the stomach with sufficient strength to cust if out and keep it out. Impart permanent energy to the digestive organs with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and the object is accomplished. This powerful vegetable remedy is not a mere stimulant. It does not brace up the gastric machinery for an hour or two, leaving it when the temporary excitement has passed off, in a worse state than before, Such is the effect of the ordinary alcoholic nostrums. They keep the stomach in a perpetual see-saw between unnatural activity and utter relaxation. Not so the BITTERS. Medicated with the finest tonic, alterative, and anti-billous extracts, they permanently reinforce and continuously regulate the assimilating organs. Such is the experience of tens of thousands, At this debliftating season of the year, when the solvent principle of the gastric juice is weakened by a constant drain of the animal fluids through the pores, Hostatran's BITTERS is an article of prime necessity for the weak To neglect the use of a tonic and alterative, so wonderfully efficacious and entirely harmless, is simply to forego the blessings of health and vigor, and voluntarily accept feebleness and discomfort in their

The undersigned, known to the public as Manufac turers of Pure, Unadulterated Family and Fancy Soaps, have spent many years and much of their means in educating the public to believe the facts that 'se-cailed cheap or !ow-priced" Soaps, being necessarily adulterated, are the dearest, and that good pure Scaps, although apparently dearer, are the cheapest. They have reason to know that their teaching has had its proper effect upon the minds of intelligent housekeepers, and believing the time has come when a really superior Soap will be appreciated, they now put in the market an ardicie which they are confident is the best Family Washing Soap ever offered to the people of this or any other community.

MERINO SOAP.

The superiority of the materials used, and the chemical combination of them, is of such a scientific nature that the Merino Soap is perfectly neutral and mild, and cannot injure the texture of the most delicate fabric, whilst its washing or detersive properties are truly astonishing.

The Merino Soap can be used by rubbleg on the clothes in the usual way; but if cut in shavings, and dissolved in hot water, and the clothes soaked for half as hour in the solution, its extraordinary detersive properties will be more fully obtained. One pound will go as far as three pounds of any of
